UK weather: More festivals cancelled as thunderstorms and 60mph winds to batter UK

'No matter where you are in the UK you're at risk of seeing some kind of localised disruption'

Andy Gregory | Saturday 10 August 2019 10:47 |

Thunderstorms and 60mph winds are forecast to batter the UK this weekend, leading to the cancellation of events across the country in the face of weather warnings and flooding.

After the high-profile closures of Boardmasters in Cornwall and Houghton Festival in Norfolk, many smaller-scale events have followed suit, leaving thousands disappointed.

"No matter where you are in the UK you're at risk of seeing some kind of localised disruption from wind," said Met Office forecaster Craig Snell.

The Met Office has put in place yellow weather warnings for storms in Scotland and Northern Ireland, and for strong winds across England and Wales.
